THE COUNTRY-JOURNAL Extraordinary.

THIS evident, that many Designs, which might have been highly beneficial to the Publick, have miscarried, only by wanting a regular Scheme of Execution; to guard against which, I have taken some Precautions, and such as, 'tis hoped, may render my Appearances of universal Influence and Advantage; but that the Expectations of Friends may keep Pace with my unwearied Endeavours in their Service, I look upon myself under a Necessity of dedicating the extraordinary Labours of this Day, not so much to review what has been done, as to let them know what will be done.

THE Scene of Action, which for some Time has lain altogether without Doors, will now be partly within; where, if our Pro-feelings are not properly counteracted, all past Attempts will prove insignificant, and in vain.

No Methods, therefore, shall be omitted to procure the desired Success; nothing shall be omitted that Malice can invent; or Rage enforce.

My dearest Friends, and Countrymen, I am going to open my self to you without Reserve: All Disguises and Fiction laid aside; and for once I'll treat you with Sincerity and Truth; neither of which I could have any Assistance from, but upon this particular Occasion.

You cannot but know the Grand Affair resolv'd on by us, was, to attack the Government; and either to embarrass them, or push for a general Uneasiness; the Management of which was left to myself, Dean S——, a late Secretary, W—— S——, Esq; and a few others: How we have already discharged the great Trust reposed in us, or are able to discharge it in Time to come, will best appear from the present Discoveries.

'Tis sufficiently known that the most probable Means have been us'd to execute the latter Part of our Commission; the former, is our proper Work in the approaching Season: We have every Way, consistent with our own Safety, striven to asperse and blacken the M——y; we have not only had our weekly Hirelings to spread Scandal through the Kingdom, but have supported a more private Correspondence, and travelling Emissaries, Emissaries, to confirm that Scandal; and to propagate false Reports and Stories contriv'd on Purpose to render those intrusted with the Administration obnoxious.

THESE have not been altogether without Success; and in the North, we seem fully to have gain'd our Point: But that I may not rob him of the Honour to whom 'tis most justly due, I must acknowledge this is an Acquisition entirely owing to that disinterested Patriot and Statesman W—— S——, Esq; his little invenom'd Libel did the Business, and spread Contagion as epidemical as the new Distemper among the Horses; which, tho' it has at present only infected the Beasts, may, if not timely prevented, be fatal to Men, and prove more universally destructive.

BEING indefatigable in the Service, he put that elaborate excellent Piece to Press at NEWCASTLE, and dispers'd it among all our Friends in that Part of England; so that now there is not a Malcontent, or Jacobite of US in the Nation, but is fully convinc'd that the present M——y are Enemies to their King and Country; that they are not fit to be continued in the chief Direction; that they have been lavish of the publick Money; and acted inconsistent with the Trust repos'd in them, and betray'd their Country, by voting their present Majesties a larger Revenue for supporting the Honour and Dignity of the Crown, and maintaining their numerous and illustrious Family, than was given to the late Queen, who had no ſuch Royal Family to maintain; and that this was ſuch an EXORBITANT EXPENCE, as they are convinc'd, the Promoters of ſhould never be forgiven.

BUT they are ſtill better convinc'd than all this; and as firmly believe as we do ourſelves, that Things will never go right, till we have the Management of them; till myſelf, and thoſe under whoſe auſpicious Influences Great Britain ſo eminently flouriſh'd, during the four laſt Years of Queen Anne, are plac'd at the Helm, and have again the Prime, the ſole Direction.

THERE was a Time, indeed, theſe were a little wrong, and, out of a miſtaken Notion of Good to their Country, made a few ineffectual Offers to ſet aſide the Hanover Succeſſion; but they are now better informed; we have contracted the moſt ſacred Friendſhip: Our Intereſts and Views are now the ſame, and what they chiefly propoſe by their preſent Struggle to be again employ'd, is, to let their Countrymen ſee that they are the propereſt to be truſted with the Defence of thoſe who they have formerly betray'd.

THO' theſe preſent Attainments may be thought conſiderable, yet they bear but ſmall Proportion to thoſe we promiſe ourſelves in the approaching S——n, which we don't doubt making remarkable, by a thorough Change, and an entire Diſmiſſion of all thoſe our Diſappointments have made us Enemies to.

THEY may pretend to deſpiſe our Attacks as impotent, or as envious and unjuſt; and defy the Utmoſt we dare attempt:

But

But we know our Strength too well to be thus baffled; 'tis our unalterable Reſolution to purſue them to their Deſtruction, or inſult the P——e that protects them.

NOTHING ſhall ſatisfy us but to ſee them ſacrificed to our perſonal Reſentments, who were the long-try'dand faithful Servants of his late Majeſty, and the firſt Glories of a Reign ſtain'd by a Diſeſteem of thoſe, whoſe Intrepidity, Roſolution, and Loyalty ſo largely contributed to the preſerving the Honour and Intereſt of the Illuſtrious Houſe of Hanover in this Nation, even in the moſt dangerous Times, againſt the very Perſons who are chief in the preſent Oppoſition, and once bid fair to have diſpoſſeſs'd us of our Liberties, and depriv'd us of the preſent Royal Family, or oblig'd us to have redeem'd both with Blood.

SOME may be weak enough to think, that whatever Alterations may hereafter be made in the Adminiſtration, their Royal Maſter will always ſhew a juſt Value for thoſe, who have ſo ſteadily adher'd to his own, and their Country's Intereſt; and that they'll meet with an Approbation due to their Fidelity and Abilities; that his Majeſty will not act by them inconſiſtent with that high Veneration his Subjects have of his Majeſty's Goodneſs and Wiſdom; or contrary to what has ever been ſo diſtinguiſhingly the Peculiar of the auguſt Houſe of Hanover, no more to forget their Friends, than be afraid of their Enemies: They may go yet further, and imagine, that no Treatment ment will appear that may discourage, in any future Times of Difficulty or Danger, the honest, the loyal Attempts of Friends to the Protestant Interest and Succession.

But we are prepar'd for the worst that can happen, and not to be discouraged if Things should take such an unhappy Turn.

We despise every Fence, and don't doubt letting it be seen, that the most sacred Barrier is to be forc'd: 'Tis not the Royal Favour, or untainted Loyalty; 'tis not an unexceptionable Conduct, or the universal Affection of the People for them; 'tis not the great Happiness they have been to these Kingdoms, and to Europe, or the greater Good they are capable of; 'tis not their being valuable publick Blessings; born to serve and save their Country, shall secure them from our unappeasable Rage; and prevent our saying the vilest Things of them, or doing the basest by them.

How far we have behaved agreeable to so laudable a Resolution hitherto, let the World determine; if we have been defective, we are resolv'd to make amends, by most strictly adhering to it in our future Proceedings: There is nothing so criminal in the worst of Characters, but we have apply'd to those in Power, because they are in Power; and endeavour'd, if possible, to stab them thus in the dark, who we are unable more publickly to destroy.

We are but an inconsiderable Faction, 'tis true; but we can easily be come a mischievous one: We have popular Methods enough in our Power to make us, at leaſt, be thought numerous, and appear formidable; and we could not anſwer it to our King, not to make uſe of them: We are capable of Aſſaſſination; and in P——'s CAUSE, as 'tis call'd, the moſt cowardly Attacks are juſtifiable; the more baſe, the more proper.

DEPEND upon us then, my Friend, in the approaching critical Juncture, for all that Men exaſperated by the moſt aggravating Diſappointments dare do: The COUNTRY JOURNAL ſhall continue to incenſe the Populace, and behave to the Government with unprecedented Indecencies and Inſolence: It ſhall treat the M——y as publick Plunderers, as the Invaders of our Rights and Privileges, Enemies to Liberty, and our Eſtabliſhment in Church and State; who have ſupported themſelves by Rapine and Oppreſſion, and grown rich by the Deſolation and Spoils of their native Country: It ſhall repreſent them as moſt treacherous and perfidious, more baſe and black than even B——l——ke.

WHILE the Attack is thus furiouſly carrying on without Doors, with equal Juſtice, and we hope Succeſs, it ſhall be ſupported from within; myſelf, and good Ally WILL S——— will bellow EXORBITANT EXPENCES, BRIBERY, and CORRUPTION, the bottomleſs Gulph, SECRET SERVICES, the NATIONAL DEBT, Diſmal Truths, and Concealed Iniquities, and rage, and foam, rather than be deſpiſed and diſregarded, as we have been; we will be Heard, or the Peace of the —— ſhall be daily broke, and the Diſpatch of publick Buſineſs interrupted.

We have already by us ſome excellent S——s, and other Performances ſuited to ſeveral ſubſequent Occaſions; being now determined what to ſpeak, and what to print, then; the former is proper to Will S—— and myſelf; the latter is for a Seaſon, committed chiefly to the conducting of that finiſh'd Stateſman, Harry Gambol, and Orthodox Prelate, Dean Polly-glot; and from the exemplary Piety of the one, and moſt conſummate Skill in Politicks of the other; and from the ſtrong Affection of both to our happy Conſtitution, what is there great and good which might conduce to the Advancement of Religion, or Welfare of the State, that may not be expected?

Thus accompliſh'd, reſolv'd and prepar'd, we ſet out the proper Agents of ſuch valuable, ſuch honeſt Undertakings; Undertakings worthy ourſelves; and which we alone are equal to: Revenge and perſonal Pique aſſiſt us.

We don't pretend to charge any becauſe they are guilty; that would be doing Violence to our eſtabliſh'd Characters; no, we charge them becauſe they are in the M——y, and we are not; this has been the only Reaſon of our paſt Conduct, and ſtands ſufficient to juſtify the worſt we can offer at; we have loaded them with a Multitude of Crimes, and ſhall ſtill be adding to the Number; we don't pretend to prove one Crime, or make make good the leaſt Miſmanagement againſt them: It may in Time abundantly anſwer our Purpoſe, to impoſe upon the People.

But if in ſo material a Point our former ill Succeſs ſhould attend us, we have ſtill a reſerved Game to Play: 'Tis but carrying our Enmity ſomething higher, to make ourſelves moſt conſiderable: We have already reviv'd the dying Hopes of Faction, and the Jacobites, who were univerſally dejected, and had given up their Cauſe for loſt, have thrown away their Deſpondency, and rais'd great Expectations from us; there is no Diſaffection in the Nation but what we have occaſion'd; and 'tis in our Power to carry it to any Degree we pleaſe: His Majeſty has not an Enemy, but what is a Friend to us.

Thus knowing our Strength, and regardleſs of the Event, we are firmly reſolv'd to puſh our Reſentments to the utmoſt, and either become ſuperior to thoſe we have ſworn Enmity to, or riſque a Diſtreſs and general Confuſion; and, as it has been the only Rule of our paſt Conduct, ſo it may as certainly be expected to be, that every Proceeding of the preſent Government, whether abroad or at home, ſhall be cenſured and revil'd, becauſe ſuch is a Proceeding of the preſent Government.

After this, let them talk of defying us if they pleaſe, inſiſt upon their Innocence, and challenge us to prove ſo much as one Particular, in which they have betray'd their Truſt, acted unbecoming the high Stations they are in, or inconſiſtent with the Honour of their King, and the real Intereſt of their Country: Our Buſineſs is only to aſſert, not to venture upon the Proof; and if we can but gain Belief, 'tis all we are at preſent ſollicitous about.

We ſmile at People's ſaying, That to be influenced by ſuch an exaſperated malevolent Party, would argue the utmoſt Weakneſs in a C——t; 'twould be the greateſt Teſtimony of Irreſolution; and that they may thank God, Great Britain's Monarch is too good, too wiſe, too ſteady, to regard what is only the Effect of a private Quarrel, and perſonal Animoſity, and is look'd upon as ſuch by all Men of Senſe in the Nation.

Thus you ſee what you are to depend upon from us, and what we depend upon for ourſelves; our Expectations are large, and not to be leſſen'd; Succeſs will crown all: Nor is it any Damp to our Hopes, to be told, that there are none of us equal to that Adminiſtration we would puſh into, but are ſuch as already are contemn'd or abhorr'd; not a Man, but their Country has juſt Cauſe to dread their being again employ'd, as Perſons no wiſe Government would venture to truſt; Such, as no Prince would rely on, that has any Regard for his own Honour, or a juſt Concern for the Welfare of his People.

I am, Meſſieurs,

Moſt devotedly

Your Servant,

CALEB D'ANVERS.
